

MILEY, THE RAZZY CLOTHES HORSE

JOANNA'S hair and wigs styled by John Frieda at his new salon, 73 New Cavendish W.1. Sapphire Diamond jewellery all from CARTIER. Shoes and handbags from a selection at Charles Jourdan and Russell and Bromley.

MILITARY PRECISION

"I LOVE military things, probably because I'm an Army daughter." Wool crepe suit (above) over white vest. All at Chic of Hampstead; Olive Walton.

...n't attempt to wear trousers...
Despite the Cartier watch Joanna does buy a certain amount of junk jewellery. "If you mix it with the real thing, you can get quite a stunning effect."

URES BY JEANY

MILITARY PRECISION

"I LOVE military things, probably because I'm an Army daughter." Wool crepe suit (above) over white vest. All at Chic of Hampstead; Olive Walton, Birmingham; Bracegirdle, Derby; R. W. Forsyth, Glasgow.

A SHORT CUT TO STYLE...

"I LIKE my hair clubbed and straight like the Chinese... I was brought up in the Far East." Black wig (left) by John Frieda complements this flame red blouse and black pants. All at Harvey Nichols, Knightsbridge.

And that means a knack of paring down her own clothes to essentials that work for her . . . and her life-style.

Essentials, that almost without exception, come from her favourite designer, Jean Muir, who has her own unique more attractive. And grossly big bums just shouldn't attempt to wear trousers . . ."

Despite the Cartier cachet Joanna does buy a certain amount of junk jewellery. "If you mix it with the real thing, you can get quite a stunning effect."

PICTURES BY JEANY

SIMPLY STUNNING

"DRESSES like this are invaluable. Just sling it on, add high heels and you're away." Simple scarlet jersey slip of a dress (above) from Simpson's, Piccadilly.

... OR IN THE PINK

"THE great thing about Jean Muir's clothes is you wear them, they don't wear you." Like this shocking pink glitter jacket and matching trousers (right) teamed with boob tube. All at Harrods; Coquette, Bournemouth.

Woman FASHION

for designer clothes and solid 18ct investment Cartier jewellery. Statuesque actress Joanna Lumley managed to look stunning throughout every moaning, groaning judo bout in the Avengers.

Then, as crime fighting Purdey, she fought her way out of the hairiest scrapes in the flimsiest of dresses.

Now wafting her favourite Yves St Laurent perfume, she is the best dressed alien you'll ever hope to meet as Sapphire in the latest TV science thriller "Sapphire and Steel."

Joanna, a former model, and it shows, has a genuine enthusiasm for clothes that bubbles over... albeit for the very best.

Knack

This perfect clothes horse—a standard size 10 who enviably never weighs herself—knows instinctively what suits her style.

And that means a knack of paring down her own clothes to essentials that work for her... and her life-style.

Essentials, that almost without exception, come from her favourite designer, Jean Muir, who has her own unique

As Joanna says: "You wear them, they don't wear you."

Joanna prances around her favourite designer's Bruton Street showroom, fitting from sueded to crepes to jerseys. She loves it all.

"I have known Jean for 15 years... I worked for her as a model."

"I can't wear anybody else's clothes. When she designs a new collection it comes out looking newer than anybody else's."

Vintage

But with one Jean Muir dress costing what most women have to spend on clothes a year, Joanna easily justifies the expense.

"I have a lot of vintage Muir clothes, some I've bought at sales. The skirt and blouse I came to the studio in today is eight years old and there is no other designer label that I can wear for that length of time."

She has a distinctive fashion philosophy: "What you wear is meant to make you look more attractive. And grossly big bums just shouldn't attempt to wear trousers..."

Despite the Cartier cachet Joanna does buy a certain amount of junk jewellery. "If you mix it with the real thing, you can get quite a stunning effect."

PICTURES BY JEANY

Simply Stunning

...like this are wearable. Just sling it on and high heels and you're away. Simple jersey slip of a dress (above) from London's Piccadilly.

OR IN THE PINK

Express woman FASHION

★ SHE IS a very classy, blue chip lady with an expensive taste for designer clothes and solid 18ct investment Cartier jewellery.

Statuesque actress Joanna Lumley managed to look stunning throughout every moaning, groaning judo bout in the Avengers.

Then, as crime fighting Purdey, she fought her way out of the hairiest scrapes in the flimsiest of dresses.

Now wafting her favourite Yves St Laurent perfume, she is the best dressed alien you'll ever hope to meet as Sapphire in the latest TV science thriller "Sapphire and Steel."

Joanna, a former model, and it shows, has a genuine enthusiasm for clothes that bubbles over... albeit for the very best.

Knack

This perfect clothes horse—a standard size 10 who enviably never weighs herself—knows instinctively what suits her style.

And that means a knack of paring down her own clothes to essentials that work for her... and her life-style.

Essentials, that almost without exception, come from her favourite designer, Jean Muir, who has her own unique gift for coaxing soft jersey into beautiful fluid lines.

By Jackie Modlinger

As Joanna says: "You wear them, they don't wear you."

Joanna prances around her favourite designer's Bruton Street showroom, flitting from suedes to crepes to jerseys. She loves it all.

"I have known Jean for 15 years... I worked for her as a model.

"I can't wear anybody else's clothes. When she designs a new collection it comes out looking newer than anybody else's."

Vintage

But with one Jean Muir dress costing what most women have to spend on clothes a year, Joanna easily justifies the expense.

"I have a lot of vintage Muir clothes, some I've bought at sales. The skirt and blouse I came to the studio in today is eight years old and there is no other designer label that I can wear for that length of time."

She has a distinctive fashion philosophy: "What you wear is meant to make you look more attractive. And grossly big bums just shouldn't attempt to wear trousers..."

Despite the Cartier cachet Joanna does buy a certain amount of junk jewellery. "If you mix it with the real thing, you can get quite a stunning effect."

PICTURES BY JEANY

LUMLEY
CRA
CLO
HO

